

Britain's Wilson: Symbol of Tottering Socialism

By LEON DENNEN
(NEW YORK News Analyst)

BRITAIN'S Prime Minister Harold Wilson is another indication of the decline in the political fortunes of the Socialist parties in most nations of West Europe and Asia.

Like the totalitarian "socialists" who rule in the Communist countries, the democratic socialists are discovering that even their brand of moderate Marxism cannot solve the problems or cure the ills that plague humanity in the nuclear age.

The bored offspring of the affluent middle class who seek the romance of revolution among the New Leftists and the Students for a Democratic Society regard the democratic socialists' addiction to freedom as a relic of the past. The Communists have long denounced them as "tools of capitalism."

Even London's liberal weekly, The Observer, is now calling for Wilson's resignation as prime minister and leader of the Labor party.

Yet only five years ago Wilson was hailed as a brilliant "young" leftist leader. He was going to nationalize Britain's banks and basic industries. He hoped to create a welfare state which, unlike the Communist version of socialism, would be based on democratic freedom and human decency.

Now he is denounced by the younger members of his own Labor party as a middle-aged failure who betrayed Marxist ideals.

Wilson's tragedy is, in a sense, also the tragedy of former President Lyndon B. Johnson and Vice President Humphrey. Like many politicians before him who promised the liberal millennium, he was confronted as prime minister with the complex realities of power in a free society.

The same realities that prompt the conservative President Nixon to veer to the liberal side in foreign policy and domestic affairs forced Wilson to discard many of his socialist illusions.

As an ambitious leftist politician reaching out for power, he could castigate U.S. foreign policy with impunity. But as prime minister he soon found that he had to rely on American economic and diplomatic support.

These, of course, are only some of the major reasons for Wilson's mounting difficulties. However, he is a skilled politician who has already weathered many storms. He can cling to power until the election in 1971. He may yet outwit his detractors in and out of the Labor party.

But his plight is symbolic of the troubles facing the anti-Communist socialists in France, Italy, West Germany, Japan and elsewhere in the free world. They, too, are engaged in an uphill struggle against new totalitarian forces on the left and right.

Even in the Scandinavian countries which they have ruled for decades with moderation and justice, the democratic socialists are fighting for their political life.

the United States on the war in Vietnam. It was at all times a lukewarm support but it aroused the hostility of Labor's extreme leftists.

He also lost the backing of the labor unions when, in an effort to restore Britain's chaotic economy, he decided to introduce a bill in Parliament to curb wildcat strikes.

This time even moderate labor politicians were furious since the majority of them face defeat in the elections without trade union support.

Then, to add insult to injury, Wilson's government decided to raise the price of eyeglasses and false teeth under the National Health Service. The young Labor members of Parliament, the backbenchers, were quick to denounce this as treason to socialism. They have long regarded cheap eyeglasses and false teeth as one of the most vital achievements of the welfare state.

These, of course, are only some of the major reasons for Wilson's mounting difficulties. However, he is a skilled politician who has already weathered many storms. He can cling to power until the election in 1971. He may yet outwit his detractors in and out of the Labor party.

But his plight is symbolic of the troubles facing the anti-Communist socialists in France, Italy, West Germany, Japan and elsewhere in the free world. They, too, are engaged in an uphill struggle against new totalitarian forces on the left and right.

Urges Employment of Older Workers

Special attention is being focused on the abilities of the 40-plus workers by the 34 offices of the Iowa State Employment Service during the week of May 26 Harold Van Der Weide, local manager, said Thursday. This week has been set aside to coincide with the national observance of Senior Citizens Month.

The ISES will make concerted efforts during the coming week to point out to employers the advantages offered by mature workers and to tell 40-plus workers of the special employment services available to them.

According to Mr. Van Der Weide "One of the goals of Senior Citizens Month is to convince more employers that by refusing to hire or even consider workers over 40 they are cheating themselves out of the maturity, judgment, abilities and skills these workers offer them."

Studies by the Department of Labor have proven older workers are productive, efficient, reliable, require little supervision and generally have excellent work attendance records.

In Carroll during the past 12 months, 142 applications were received from workers over 45, twelve of which were 65 or older. Of the 77 placements made of workers over 45, only three were over 65; pointing up the need for increased employee awareness of the job needs for persons in this category.

"Too often we put great stock in experience but once a man or woman over 40 is unemployed, all the years of experience and all the skill that yesterday identified him as a key employee suddenly is not considered."

"This month our attention is also focused on the young worker. In many ways, these two groups are surprisingly alike when it comes to employment. Both have more trouble getting jobs and both have higher rates of unemployment than the other age groups," he added.
