3 of 4 women's quarterfinals look wrapped up at Wimbledon

(AP) — If past records could be relied on, three of Monday's women's quarterfinals at Wimbledon looked settled before they were started.

Chris Evert Lloyd, the favorite, took on Mima Jausovec of Yugoslavia. They have played 12 times before and Lloyd won every time.

Third-seeded Tracy Austin faced her 11th match against Pam Shriver. Austin has won

Fourth-seeded Martina Navratilova, Wimbledon singles champion in 1978 and 1979, hoped to continue an 11-0 winning streak against Virginia Ruzici of Romania.

Only the fourth match, between second-seeded Hana Mandlikova of Czechoslovakia and Wendy Turnbull of Australia, was less predictable. Mandlikova has a 4-3 head-to-head lead over her Lloyd is working out with her husband, British Davis Cupper John Lloyd, and Dennis Ralston, who reached the Wimbledon men's final in 1966 and was the U.S. Davis Cup captain for five years.

Navratilova, who recently had shoulder trouble and has been struggling to get her service right, was in good shape as she beat American Betsy Nagelsen 6-3, 6-1. Austin stayed on the

It's the notorious alley fighter, Jimmy Connors. Old Jimbo. You must remember Jimbo?

Listen, this kid had an act that made the petulant court tantrums of Mac the Super Brat look like Shirley Temple on the Good Ship Lollypop. He ate sauteed rattlesnake meat and washed it down with tiger milk. He was the terror linesmen and umpires.

Sometimes surly and sometimes the ultimate smart aleck, with that wiggle of his hips and the waggle of his finger, full of bluster and bombast, he was the Dead End Kid of tennis.
